The robbers are ruling Omaha just now, but the citizens and tax payers will yet make themselves heard.

Reports from harvesting in various sections of the state, indicate the heaviest crop of small grain ever gathered in Nebraska.

When the jobbers and robbers in the city council profess to own the city, it is high time for our citizens to make up their minds as to who owns the city council.

Every lawyer in Nebraska who has lost a case before a justice of the peace feels himself competent to fill Judge Lake's shoes at Lincoln. The woods are full of candidates.

Ohio democrats are taking a gloomy view of the situation, but if Hoadly's mouth can be padlocked until the end of the canvass there will still be hope for the unconverted bournons.

Willis Smith, of Greene county, Va., dropped dead just as he was raising his hand to swear to the correctness of his tax list. If Willis Smith had been an Omaha assessor the incident would have excited no comment.

Mr. Chapman, of Council Bluffs, has been interviewed by the Chicago Tribune and expresses the belief that the entire state ticket is endangered by the prohibition craze, which is drawing thousands of republicans from the party ranks.

Workingmen of Omaha who are leaning on their picks and shovels waiting for a job will be pleased to notice that their great friends Hascall, Kaufmann, Murphy and Leader in the city council refuse to permit the contractors to begin the work of paving the streets, for which the property owners have petitioned and the contracts have been awarded.

Mr. Kaufmann, at the last meeting of the city council, protested that the contract for paving Sixteenth street could not be approved because it was locked up with a time lock in the safe at his office. After the meeting Mr. Kaufmann coolly informed Martin Dunham that the contract was in his pocket all the time.

At the meeting of the paper makers in Saratoga last week, an interesting paper was read by Mr. C. C. Woolworth, of New York, a brother of the Hon. James M. Woolworth in this city, which recounted the efforts made by his house to build up an export business and the results they have achieved.

The second dangerous mistake made by the Iowa republicans was their refusal to renominate Judge Day as a punishment for his vote on the constitutionality of the prohibition amendment.

Iowa is strongly republican on national issues. For years she has been the banner state of the party, and in both local and national campaigns has rolled up an overwhelming republican majority.

A strong effort will be made, as soon as congress meets, to secure the passage of an act continuing the office of general of the army, which expires by limitation with General Sherman's term of office.

Having passed through every cholera season, including 1833 in Kentucky and 1849 in St. Louis, I have its dangers and not for a moment think of attempting to summarize it. He says: "I am sorry that you have in any way alluded to this matter, because I think the Judge did not want any publicity given to it. In fact, he said none of this talk was to be printed, and I know that he did not want the public to know that the thing had been so expensive. To make it public was painful to him, and had I thought that after two campaigns of your own you would have so little sympathy for a fellow soldier, I would not have told you anything about it."

Mr. Evans Must Go. New York Times.

We do not know how much Mr. Evans, commissioner of internal revenue, is doing to promote the nomination of President Arthur next year, but he is doing a great deal to prevent Mr. Arthur's election if he should be nominated.

Judge Savage. Lincoln Democrat.

There is evidently a growing sentiment in Nebraska that partisanship should be considered much less and character, ability and learning a great deal more, in the future than in the past.

OUR FOREIGN POPULATION. How the Wave of Emigration Has Ebbed and Flowed for Half a Century.

The immigration into the United States during the fiscal year just ended was more than 25 per cent below that of the preceding year and 10 per cent below that of the year which preceded that.

It is strange talk, this coming from Iowa, that the republicans are in danger of losing their banner state.

HANDS UP.

The blockade of public improvements by Hascall and his pals in the city council is the most audacious attempt to compel our tax payers and contractors to stand and deliver that has ever been made in the city of Omaha.

They command the property owners, whom they have robbed in broad daylight, to throw up their hands and submit to being stripped of all they possess, or pay a heavy ransom if they would escape.

The robbers are ruling Omaha just now, but the citizens and tax payers will yet make themselves heard.

argument that Sheridan's promotion will make General Hancock a lieutenant general. The friends of both Sheridan and Hancock are working hard to push the scheme before congress, and with good prospects of success.

In case the act passes, a vacancy will exist in the ranks of the major generals. General Howard is the ranking brigadier, and will be pushed by his friends for promotion on the ground of his war record.

DORSEY gives his word, whatever that is worth, that the nomination of Stanley Matthews to the supreme bench was the result of a bargain between Garfield, Gould and Huntington, in which the consideration was a subscription of $100,000 to the republican campaign fund of 1880.

ACCORDING to Dorsey, it took $400,000 to carry Indiana in 1880. This is nearly nine times as much as Hoadly paid for his nomination this summer in Ohio.

almost certainly I think our board of health should invite the ablest of our old physicians to co-operate with them and at once publish for the information of all every suggestion to the people which they may think will be valuable, so that the public mind may be prepared for it, and in this way alarm when it comes, which fearfully aids the disease, may be averted.

Its vagaries, as I choose to term it, are wonderful. In 1849 in this city I have seen persons die out of almost every house on one side of the street and not a case on the other side. I have remained in a house where four grown ones in 24 hours of one family were carried off with it. I have seen the strong man with no seeds of disease in him, looking the picture of health and like the majestic oak, first struck with it, and in a few hours writhing in the agonies of cramps, and soon a corpse, and children of all ages swept away with it.

From my observation I think that the evacuations from the bowels tend to spread the disease, and that these should in all cases be burnt or buried at once, burning the best, and never thrown into privies.

I would advise all who can, if it appears, to get away north, about the lakes. Those who can't get away should avoid drinking as much as possible; avoid melons, green corn, cucumbers, cabbage and acids generally.

These are suggestions from one simply from experience, who has no medical knowledge, and he suggests that now, right at this time, our board of health and our medical colleges give publicity in the press of general advice in case of its appearance, and not wait until it comes before saying a word.

Oregon's Census and Representation. Portland Oregonian.

Oregon will desire, doubtless, to have a special census taken in 1885, under the law passed by Congress four years ago which provides that the census of a State may be taken at any time, provided half the expense shall be paid by the State.

It is strange talk, this coming from Iowa, that the republicans are in danger of losing their banner state.
